

The British Neuroscience Association (BNA), in collaboration with Neuroscience Ireland (NSI) and with the British Society for Neuroendocrinology (BSN) as our Festival Partner, is delighted to invite you to submit proposals for sessions at the 2019 Festival of Neuroscience, being held in Dublin 14-17 April.

General Information

Proposals should be submitted on the understanding that organisers have already made speakers aware of the meeting date and location, and confirmed their acceptance to attend if the proposal is accepted. Organisers and speakers should be aware that the proposal may be rejected (for example, if the focus of the proposed session is too narrow). The Programme Organising Committee (POC) may want to work with organisers to modify some potentially acceptable proposals so that they can meet with the objectives of the meeting more effectively.

Sessions will be either Symposia or Workshops:

Symposia

Each symposium is 100 minutes in length and consists of four talks; each talk is therefore usually 25 minutes long, although the Chair is free to divide the time differently, e.g. four 20 minute talks followed by 20 minutes discussion.

Two of the speakers should co-chair the session.

All speakers' publications should be recognised for having made an important contribution to their field. At least one speaker should be a leader of the field, and at least one should be an early career researcher.

In order to widen opportunity to speak at the Festival as much as possible, it is expected that none of speakers will have presented a talk at the previous BNA Festival of Neuroscience in April 2017 - see list on page 4. In addition, any individual can only speak in one symposium or session during the Festival. If an individual's name appears in more than one proposal, the POC will work with the symposium organiser to seek an alternative speaker.

Workshops

Workshops consist of 4-6 participants including a chairperson, and are focussed on topics of wide interest (e.g. policy, careers, funding, grant-writing, publishing, short courses etc.) It is expected that none of the participants will have presented a talk at the previous BNA Festival of Neuroscience (April 2017, see page 4). Each proposal will be considered individually, and it is expected there will be discussion with the POC and Meetings Secretary on how to best fit into the programme.

Equality and diversity

It is expected that all proposals will have a gender balance and meet the BNA's Policy for Equality and Diversity, available online at bna.org.uk/about/policies/#equality-and-diversity-policy. Please particularly note the comments on gender.

Geographical spread

Organisers should ensure all speakers are from different Universities or research institutions to ensure wide-ranging representation. If the session is sponsored solely by the BNA, sessions may not include more than one international speaker from outside the EU (see below).

Finances and Expenses

Sponsorship: Although the BNA will fund some sessions that are accepted into the scientific programme, organisers are strongly encouraged to arrange funding from other sources. Acceptance will be based principally on scientific criteria, but, where proposals are of equal merit, proposals are more likely to be successful if they are accompanied by firm commitments from sponsors to meet speaker expenses and to make a contribution of at least £1750+VAT to cover the overhead expenses of running the session.

Expenses: Proposers should make speakers aware the BNA will cover the following costs for each speaker:

- Meeting registration
- One night's accommodation
- Travel expenses up to a maximum of £125 from UK or Ireland locations, or £250 for speakers from EU locations

Sessions may include one international speaker based outside the EU. Ticket costs for speakers outside the EU are to be approved BNA Office prior to purchase by 31st January 2019 at the latest. After this date there is no guarantee BNA will be able to meet ticket costs.

If a symposium organiser is able to cover speaker expenses from elsewhere they are at liberty to refund their speakers according to their own guidelines. If this is the case then please make sure that the BNA office is aware of any such arrangement made with speakers.

For expenses of speakers in Partner Society symposia, please see page 3.

Information required for proposals

Please contact the Chair of the POC if you have any questions about the scientific programme, and the BNA office (office@bna.org.uk) if your questions are about the submission process.

Please submit your proposal at www.bna.org.uk/symposia/bna-2019-symposia

Details of organiser

The organiser is likely to be one of the co-chairs or speakers in the session but does not have to be. They act as the first point of contact for all correspondence with the POC.

Your proposal for BNA2019 session

- Session title
- Session theme
- Session type (symposium/workshop)
- Brief description (up to 2000 characters describing the area of research; please note that the text will be used in publicity to advertise the session should it be accepted into the programme)
- Justification for inclusion in the BNA2019 scientific programme (up to 2000 characters; please see the guidelines below which outline the criteria that will be used to select proposals for inclusion in the programme)

Speaker details

Symposia should have four speakers only (including two co-chairs).

Workshops will typically have four speakers, but additional speakers can be proposed and these additional speakers will be accommodated should time and space allow.

For each speaker, please provide:

Title, First Name, Surname
Department
Institution
City
Country
Email
Career stage
Gender
Provisional title of lecture
If they will be a co-chair for the session

Funding

If you have suggestions for how this proposal might be funded, or have already secured funding, please give details.

Are you submitting for a Partner Society session? If so, please state this in here. See below for more information about Partner Societies.

Partner Societies

Partner Societies have ownership of a symposium at the Festival and receive a number of benefits including reduced registration rates for all their members. (If you are interested in finding out more about being a Partner Society please see read more online and/or contact Anne Cooke at anne.cooke@bna.org.uk.)

Although Partner Societies are free to choose topics and speakers for their symposia, they must still follow the Festival symposia guidelines on composition etc stated above, and be subject to review by the Programme Organising Committee (POC). The POC may request changes to be made to a symposium proposal submitted by a Partner Society before accepting it for inclusion.

Speakers taking part in a Partner Society symposium receive complimentary registration to attend the whole festival.

Partner Societies are responsible for covering travel expenses of the speakers taking part in their symposium. This gives Partner Societies the autonomy and freedom to use their own policy and procedures for reimbursing speakers, independent of the BNA, and means that speakers will have direct contact with Partner Societies and recognise them as owning the symposium.
